Improves the sphericity of molded round bales.

Knowing that any manufacture by melting round bales causes small differences in size during the solidification of lead, it is essential to reduce these variations. It is the function of this Pedersoli roller which in addition, increases the concentricity of these balls by minimizing the flatness of the knife of the mold. It is sandblasted steel and tanned, with a rectifier disc. The rolling is done by hand by rotating the disc inserted into the slot in which a sufficient number of balls of the same caliber has been placed to cover the bottom.
