Magnificent replica by Pedersoli of the legendary Kentucky rifle from the conquest of the American West.

The Kentucky percussion rifle is the black powder weapon emblematic of the conquest of the West by American trappers. This very faithful replica is both decorative and particularly precise when shooting. It is available in a finished version or as a kit to assemble yourself.

- Walnut stock.
- Available as a kit for the .45 PN caliber version

Born from a development of German "Jäger" hunting weapons, this rifle was the great rival of Brown Bess. Typical settler weapon, the Kentucky rifle, is recognized for its lightness and precision of fire, it was the most popular of the American rifles. With percussion, this rifle black powder with rifled barrel has a bronzed barrel, the fittings are in brass and the stock is in sanded-oiled walnut.
