The 1887 lever-action shotgun, 12/70 caliber, is a faithful replica of the legendary weapon designed by John Moses Browning for Winchester. The first lever-action repeating hunting weapon, it symbolizes the alliance of tradition and innovation in the 19th century.

A legendary mechanism revisited

The lever-operated manual repeater system allows the fired cartridge to be ejected and the next one to be chambered in one smooth motion. With a 5+1 round capacity and a 71cm barrel with interchangeable chokes, this shotgun combines authenticity with modern efficiency.

Versatility and authenticity

Delivered with three chokes (Smooth, 1/4 and 1/2), it adapts to different practices. Its marbled bronze finish and its emblematic silhouette make it a western shotgun par excellence, appreciated for driven hunting as well as for Cowboy Action Shooting (CAS).

A cult rifle

The 1887 rifle also owes part of its notoriety to its appearance in popular culture, notably in the cult films Terminator 2 and Jumanji. Today, it appeals to enthusiasts of historical weapons and shooters looking for a model that is both functional and steeped in history.

With its inimitable style, smooth action and authenticity, the 1887 Jasperware lever-action shotgun is an ideal choice for lovers of western shooting and fine classic weapons.
