Rifle gun for sniper (Sharps Shooter) similar to those used during the Civil War.

- Creedmoor diopter and tunnel handlebar are not included as standard, sold as an option.
- Barrel with 6 stripes at a pitch of 1:18" or 460 mm.

Several new series of these weapons have been made taking into account both the personal initiatives of former gunsmiths and the wishes expressed by a specific clientele. The customization work undertaken aimed to improve the weapons on a mechanical level, to equip them with new Creedmoor sights or, simply to modify their aesthetics with inlays of nets, engravings or by changing the shape of their stock. The new 1874 Sharps Old West is inspired by a weapon made by Henry Slotterbeck, a gunsmith from Württemberg who emigrated to the USA around 1850 who, after working for several years for Henry Deringer in Philadelphia, founded Slotter&Co.
On the right side of the stock is a plate which can be personalized with an engraving of your choice. The handguard is keyed. The cap of the pistol grip is in marbled steel.
Creedmoor sight and tunnel front sight are not included as standard.

Sold without diopter or handlebar (optional).
