A duck call designed for mallard hunting

The Helen Baud Mallard Duck Call 68 allows you to reproduce the characteristic vocalizations of the mallard duck. Its use facilitates calling sequences during waterfowl hunts by creating realistic sounds capable of capturing the attention of moving birds.

A tried and tested traditional design

Made from boxwood, this call boasts excellent acoustic qualities. This dense and durable material promotes the reproduction of clear and natural sounds. The rubber bulb allows for easy adjustment of the volume and rhythm of the calls to suit different situations in the field.

Excellent sound power

Thanks to its elongated shape and specific design, this bird call offers excellent sound projection. It is particularly well-suited to wetlands, marshes, ponds, and bodies of water where birds can be seen at a distance. Varying the pressure applied to the bulb allows for a variety of vocalizations and enhances realism.

A format adapted to the terrain

Its robust design allows for regular use in sometimes demanding environments. The boxwood and selected components ensure good durability, while its ergonomic shape facilitates handling even with gloves or in adverse weather conditions.

A must-have for waterfowl enthusiasts

Prized for its ease of use and reliability, this call is an excellent accessory for hunters looking to enhance their calling techniques. Its intuitive operation allows for quick and convincing results with a little practice.
