French monoblock bullet ammunition (GPA) specially designed for the toughest caliber .270 Winchester Short Magnum.

The guarantee of optimal penetration and a significant shock effect.

What characterizes the GPA ball the most is undoubtedly its effectiveness. This ball can be presented as a programmed fragmentation ball. The compression of fluid in the central channel causes, at first, a deformation of the front part (mushrooming) which triples the nominal diameter of the projectile, then, only under the effect of resistance, occurs the separation of the petals.
