Every shot is a hit.

The hollow point ball is an indisputable choice when it comes to absolute precision.

The hollow tip causes a mass offset on the posterior portion of the bullet, which results in a considerable increase in accuracy.

An advantage that the best world shooters have enjoyed for years.

JHP bullets feed better than hollow lead nose bullets in most magazine firearms, whether pistol or rifle. The jacket surface is much smoother, with less variation from bullet to bullet than traditional lead.
