Designed for effective calibration and lubrication of your cast bullets, they guarantee superior shooting performance.

H&I Lyman Sizing Dies are essential for reloaders who cast their own bullets. They reduce bullet diameter to the desired size while applying uniform lubrication, ensuring increased accuracy when shooting. An improved design with 90° spaced holes allows even the harshest lubricants to be applied with ease. The tapered inlet and hardened interior ensure perfect alignment and a flawless cylindrical shape. (These dies are interchangeable with RCBS dies.)

H&I Lyman Sizing Dies are designed for reloaders who cast their own bullets, allowing the diameter of projectiles to be reduced to the exact size required for optimum accuracy. The improved die design includes 90° spaced holes, making lubrication application easier, even with the harshest lubricants.

The tapered entry ensures smooth bullet guidance into the die, while the hardened steel interior ensures precise alignment and a perfect cylindrical shape. These dies are compatible with Lyman 450/4500 and RCBS Lube-A-Matic-2 presses, providing great versatility for reloaders.

Available in a wide range of diameters corresponding to the most popular calibers, they meet the specific needs of each shooter. In addition, these dies allow the gas checks to be crimped to the base of the bullets designed to be equipped with them, thus ensuring optimal performance when shooting. By choosing H&I Lyman sizing dies, reloaders are investing in a durable and precise tool, essential for producing high-quality ammunition.
