An iconic rifle for reenactment and collecting

The first rifled rifle of the British Army, the Baker Model 1805 is a flagship piece for any enthusiast of historical firearms. Reproduced here with an exceptional level of detail, it combines authenticity and functionality , thanks to a PMG barrel and high-quality materials. Ideal for Napoleonic reenactors or discerning collectors.

Canon PMG paperback : precision and tradition

The barrel of this model is machined from a solid block of steel, then rifled by a spindle with a 1:120 twist, featuring 7 straight grooves faithful to the original design. This process guarantees excellent accuracy while respecting historical specifications.

Engraved flintlock mechanism : smooth and accurate

The flintlock mechanism features a smooth and fast hammer action , with meticulous historical engraving . It perfectly captures the ergonomics and charm of 19th-century firearms.

Adjustable aiming elements : two adjustable leaflets

The double-leaf sight offers effective and adjustable windage aiming, allowing adaptation to shooting conditions while remaining historically credible.
