Match configuration dedicated to the .38 Special

Chambered in .38 Special , this model prioritizes consistency, smooth firing, and accuracy. This caliber, particularly appreciated at the range, allows for optimal control and extended shooting sessions without excessive fatigue. Combined with the Rhino 's design, it reveals its full potential.
WARNING: This model is chambered only in .38 Special and not in .357 Magnum.

Low-axis cannon architecture

Like all Rhino models, the shot is fired from the bottom chamber of the cylinder. This design lowers the barrel axis into line with the hand, significantly reducing muzzle rise. Recoil is more linear, and the shot returns to target faster-a tangible advantage in sport shooting.

Canon 6" and no scratches 1:18

The 6" (152 mm) barrel provides a comfortable and stable sight picture. The 1:18 twist rate ensures effective stabilization of .38 Special projectiles, promoting consistent groupings at medium range.

Aristocrat® riser: micrometric precision

Equipped with an Aristocrat® adjustable rear sight, this revolver allows for precise elevation and windage adjustments. This type of sight is particularly sought after in match configurations, as it allows for fine adjustments depending on the ammunition and shooting distance.

Premium materials and Grey PVD finish

The Ergal (high-strength alloy) frame contributes to an excellent rigidity-to-weight ratio, while the barrel and shield are made of steel to guarantee durability and mechanical consistency. The Grey PVD finish provides enhanced protection against wear while offering a sleek and technical aesthetic. The Hogue® Micarta grips ensure a stable and comfortable hold.
