An essential tool for dryland training

The Clawgear Snap Cap 7.62x39 allows you to practice handling techniques without using live ammunition. Whether you're refining your trigger pull, practicing reloading sequences, or simply handling your firearm safely, these dummy cartridges offer reliable and realistic support.

Protection of the percussion mechanism

Thanks to their internal spring system, these snap caps absorb the impact of the firing pin. This limits wear on internal components during dry-fire sessions, a point often overlooked but essential for preserving the mechanism in the long term.

Realistic simulation of shooting incidents

In practice, these cartridges are ideal for simulating ignition fault incidents. They allow for training in quickly identifying and correcting a fault, a key aspect in advanced training or exercises.

Sturdy and durable construction

Made from impact- and oil-resistant polymer, Clawgear Snap Caps are built to last. They withstand repeated cycles without deforming, while maintaining good visual readability thanks to their bright color.

Versatile use

Whether for functional testing, diagnostics, or training, these dummy cartridges easily integrate into all maintenance and training routines. A simple yet particularly useful everyday accessory.

Additional features

- Use: training, instruction, maintenance
- Simulation type: firing incident (type 1)
- Visibility: High-visibility red color
- Positioning: an essential training accessory

FAQ

What are snap caps used for?

Snap caps allow for dry training, testing the operation of a weapon, and protecting the firing pin during handling without live ammunition.

Are they reusable?

Yes, these dummy cartridges are designed to be used many times thanks to their robust construction and shock-absorbing system.

Can they be used to simulate failures?

Yes, they are perfectly suited for simulating shooting incidents and practicing how to resolve them effectively.
