A versatile bullet designed for reliable expansion and controlled penetration.

A design conceived for the field

In the field, the Sierra Pro-Hunter stands out for its reliable performance. Thanks to its flat base, it ensures excellent stability over typical hunting distances. Whether driven hunts or stalking, its consistent trajectory and ability to efficiently transfer energy upon impact are appreciated.

Controlled expansion with Power Jacket

Some models incorporate Sierra's Power Jacket technology. In practical terms, this translates to an optimized jacket that promotes controlled expansion, even at moderate speeds. The result: greater effectiveness on game, with sufficient penetration to reach vital areas.

Different profiles to adapt to different uses

The range offers several bullet shapes (RN, SMP, SPT, FN, HP/FN), allowing you to choose the right one for your hunting needs and caliber. Round nose profiles (RN) are ideal for short-range shooting, while pointed bullets (SPT) offer better trajectory stability.

Additional features

- Compatibility: Wide range of calibers available
- Reloading: Ideal for demanding reloaders
- Precision: Excellent manufacturing consistency
- Use: Traditional and versatile hunting

FAQ

What type of game are these bullets suitable for?

Pro-Hunter bullets are designed for medium to heavy game, offering a good balance between expansion and penetration.

What is the difference between RN and SPT profiles?

The RN profile (round nose) is suitable for short-range shooting, while the SPT (pointed) offers a better trajectory over longer distances.

Are these bullets suitable for reloading?

Yes, they are particularly appreciated by reloaders for their consistency and quality of manufacture.
