Effective protection against rain and mud

The JACK PYKE Treggings were designed for users who regularly operate in wet environments. Whether on a forest outing, a day of hunting, or a hike in persistent rain, they form an effective barrier against moisture and mud splashes. They are exactly the kind of gear you'll appreciate having in your pack when the weather becomes unpredictable.

A robust fabric suited to the terrain

Its 400D polyester construction with a polyurethane coating offers a good balance between strength, lightness, and protection. This material limits water penetration while remaining flexible enough to move with you when traversing rough terrain.

Comfort and freedom of movement

The reinforced crotch enhances durability in a high-stress area. Combined with a cut designed to be worn over trousers, this reinforcement contributes to comfort during long days spent walking, squatting, or traversing natural obstacles.

Simple adjustment and reliable fit

The adjustable waistband with buckle allows the overpants to be easily adapted to the wearer's body shape and to the different layers of clothing worn depending on the season. A practical solution for maintaining a good fit throughout the day.
