An elegant display case for your deer trophies

A fine roe deer trophy deserves a display that highlights its character and evokes memories of a day's hunt. The 240 x 180 mm solid oak Country trophy plaque for roe deer offers a traditional setting, particularly appreciated for showcasing deer kills.

Its silhouette is distinguished by a slightly rounded upper section, curved shoulders, sculpted sides, and a pronounced lower point. At 240 mm high and 180 mm wide , it offers a generous surface area to showcase the trophy while maintaining a visible wooden frame.

Solid oak, a wood with character

Solid oak is prized for its robustness, natural texture, and distinctive grain. Its warm tones harmonize perfectly with deer antlers, creating an authentic and harmonious presentation.

Each badge has its own unique grain and color variations. These natural variations contribute to the charm of real wood and make each piece unique.

The varnished finish highlights the oak grain and makes surface maintenance easier. It also helps preserve its appearance over the years, ensuring a lasting display of hunting memorabilia.

Decorative moldings that add depth

The shield's outline features decorative raised moldings that follow the curves of the wood. This profiling emphasizes the traditional silhouette of the support and creates an elegant transition between the central section and the borders.

Its relatively wide shape, with marked shoulders and a pointed base, gives it a classic look particularly suited to the wall display of roe deer trophies .

The 240 x 180 mm format offers more width than narrower shields, allowing for different types of mounting depending on the dimensions of the prepared skull.

A discreet wall mount for your trophy room

The back is fitted with a V-shaped metal bracket , installed in a vertical groove. This system allows the badge to be hung on the wall using a fastener suitable for the weight of the assembly.

The central surface is intended to receive a deer carcass or a prepared skull, held in place by a suitable fastening device.

Whether in a trophy room, hunting lodge, or traditional interior, this wooden display stand beautifully showcases a special memento. Several plaques of varying shapes and sizes can also be combined to create a harmonious trophy collection.

FAQ

What advantage does a 240 x 180 mm shield offer for a roe deer trophy?

This format offers a larger surface area than the 210 x 130 mm or 230 x 140 mm plaques. It allows for more exposed antler around the trophy and can accommodate larger prepared skulls. However, the choice depends on the size of the kill and the desired aesthetic balance.

How to correctly position a deer massacre on one's coat of arms?

It is advisable to place the skull on the shield before attaching it to determine its ideal position. The skull should be horizontally centered, at a height that maintains visual balance between the antlers and the contours of the support. Once the position is determined, the skull can be secured with a device appropriate to its condition and weight.

Can a solid oak plaque be personalized with an engraving?

Solid oak lends itself to various personalization techniques, including laser or mechanical engraving. It's possible to have a harvest date, a hunting territory, or initials inscribed. The engraving must be adapted to the varnished finish and the available space to preserve the aesthetic appeal of the piece. Personalization is not included with the product.
