A large-format patch for deer trophies

A fine stag trophy deserves a display worthy of its grandeur. Measuring 440 x 280 mm , the varnished oak Country stag trophy offers ample space to showcase a kill and highlight the antlers of this iconic animal of big game hunting.

Its traditional silhouette is distinguished by a rounded upper section, concave side cutouts, and a long lower point. This slender shape naturally complements the verticality of the stag's antlers and helps create a balanced presentation.

This deer trophy stand easily finds its place in a hunting room, a forest lodge or an interior where hunting souvenirs occupy a special place.

Varnished oak, a noble material for your hunting souvenirs

Oak is particularly prized in the making of hunting badges for its authentic appearance and characteristic grain. Its natural hues bring a warm touch that complements the colors of deer antlers.

The varnished finish highlights the grain pattern and helps protect the surface from everyday dirt. It also makes dusting easier, a valuable advantage for a trophy intended to remain on display for many years.

Each badge displays natural variations in color and grain. These characteristics of the wood make each piece slightly different and contribute to its character.

A sculpted silhouette with decorative moldings

The shape of this wooden deer hunting shield follows the classic conventions of traditional taxidermy mounts. Its upper part forms a rounded arc, extended by curved shoulders and carved flanks that meet at a pronounced lower point.

The raised, peripheral moldings follow the contours of the support and create a subtle frame around the central surface. This profiling adds depth without overwhelming the overall design.

The particularly elongated lower point maintains a pleasing visual proportion beneath the deer's skull. The result is a restrained and elegant presentation, in keeping with the style of grand trophy rooms.

A format suited to the slaughter of large deer.

With a height of 44 cm and a width of 28 cm , this model is intended for the presentation of deer trophies requiring a more imposing support than the shields usually used for roe deer.

Its central surface allows for various stag slaughter setups, including with a prepared skull or a skull cut, subject to compatibility with the dimensions of the trophy.

The choice of a shield depends primarily on the size of the skull, the spacing of the ribs, and the desired aesthetic effect. It is therefore advisable to position the trophy on the stand before proceeding with its final mounting.

Integrated wall mounting for a neat presentation

On the back of the badge, a V-shaped metal bracket is attached to a vertical groove. This system allows the bracket to be hung on the wall while maintaining a discreet attachment behind the trophy.

The skull is attached to the front panel separately, using a screw or a suitable mounting device. Given the weight a deer trophy can represent, it is important to use a wall anchor strong enough to support the entire assembly.

Once installed, this wall-mounted hunting trophy plaque creates a durable and harmonious display, whether for a single trophy or to complement a collection of large deer.

FAQ

What size badge should I choose for a deer trophy?

The choice depends on the size of the skull and the type of preparation. A 440 x 280 mm plaque is suitable for displaying many deer carcasses, provided the available surface area is adequate for mounting. To achieve a balanced result, it is advisable to measure the prepared skull and check its positioning on the plaque before attaching it.

How to securely attach a deer head to a wooden shield?

The skull can be secured using a screw suitable for it or a specific trophy mounting system. It is recommended to pre-drill a hole in the wood to minimize the risk of splitting. The mounting should hold the skull firmly without exerting excessive pressure on fragile bones. For heavy trophies, the choice of screws and wall anchors is particularly important.

How do I care for a varnished oak escutcheon displayed on the wall?

Regular dusting with a soft, dry cloth is usually sufficient. For stubborn marks, a slightly damp cloth can be used, followed by immediate drying. It is best to avoid abrasive products, solvents, and prolonged exposure to high humidity or direct sunlight, which can damage the appearance of the wood and its varnish.
