A formidable imitation of a mouse's squeak

The Helen Baud AC75 Fox and Mouse Call reproduces the high-pitched vocalizations of a distressed mouse, a sound that naturally arouses the curiosity and predatory instinct of foxes. This realistic imitation creates a believable situation likely to attract the attention of animals in the area.

The acoustic performance of acrylic

Made of red acrylic , this bird call boasts excellent sound quality. This material is known for its ability to produce clear, powerful, and consistent sounds. It also offers excellent resistance to outdoor conditions and maintains its performance over time.

Easy to use in the field

Thanks to its intuitive design, the AC75 allows for quick and convincing vocalizations. It remains accessible to novice hunters while offering experienced users the ability to vary calling sequences to enhance the realism of simulated situations.

Compact and always available

Its compact size makes it easy to carry in a pocket, vest, or bag. Lightweight and discreet, it easily accompanies hunting, observation, or wildlife photography outings without adding bulk to your equipment.

Made in France

Like many of the brand's models, this bird call is made in France according to the quality standards that have made Helen Baud famous. This manufacturing process guarantees a high level of finish and reliability appreciated by demanding users.
